Marne Losses Are Arriving; First List 706

Total Not Thought To Be Excessive

Washington Refuses to Guess on Complete Figures

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Names of American soldiers who have fallen in the great Franco-American drive which turned the German offensive on the Marne into an utter defeat have begun to come in from overseas. They swelled to 706 the total casualties made public to-day by the War Department in two separate lists.

Although nearly three times as great as the largest number heretofore announced in a single day, the total to-day represents only a part of the lists, which have been accumulating since the great battle began July 15. And it is not to be assumed that it represents the losses for any one day.

No estimate of the American casualties in this continuous fighting has been received from General Pershing, and it was said authoritatively to-day that none is expected. In that connection, acting Secretary of War Crowell to-day deprecated any guesses as to casualties in the overseas forces, saying that publications which would exaggerate or minimize the total would create unnecessary anxiety among the relatives and friends of American soldiers.

459 Killed in Action

Of the names made public to-day 459 were of those who were killed in action and eighty who died from wounds. The second list contained only names of the dead—256 killed in action and forty-three who died from wounds—but the first list showed forty-eight wounded severely, 100 wounded to a degree undetermined and three missing in action. In the first list there also were nine who died of disease, one in an airplane accident and six from accidents and other causes.

Acting Secretary Crowell told newspaper correspondents that General Pershing would supply complete and verified casualty lists as rapidly as they could be transmitted, and that they would be given to the press and speak for themselves as to numbers.

Speculation Is Decried

"We are beginning," said Mr. Crowell, "to receive from General Pershing the toll of victory in the Marne-Aisne offensive. The casualty lists that are now being made public have been received by cable from headquarters of the American expeditionary forces, and represent losses in the recent fighting."

"Other lists are coming in by cable, are being decoded and the next of kin are being notified in advance of the publication of the names in the press, in order to the established custom of the War Department."

"The fact that 706 casualties are made public in a single day does not indicate that that number is to be taken as the daily average to be expected, and there should be no speculation on that basis."

Enemy Toll Heavier

"The losses reported and to come will bring sadness to many homes, but personal grief is tempered by the righteousness of the cause in which these brave men have given themselves and by the pride which all free peoples take in the magnificent results of their heroism."

While casualties in offensive operations necessarily are heavy, officers here do not believe that there has been an unusual number among the American forces. Proof of the fact that the German forces of great American losses, which have been circulated to impress the German population at home, is given by the fact that the American divisions which began the fighting still were taking part in it last Saturday, official reports show.

It was pointed out to-day that had the casualties among the American forces been unusually large some of the divisions necessarily would have had to be withdrawn. The fact that they have been fighting virtually continuously for twenty-one days is taken by officers here to show that their losses have been smaller than those they have inflicted on the enemy, who has been forced to withdraw many of his divisions.

Britain Denies Rumor Of U. S. Interference

America Has Made No Requests to Draft Farm Labor, Statement Declares

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The attention of the Ministry of Information has been called to a rumor that the French calling up of farm laborers for military service is due to pressure from the United States government, and it has been further rumored that America has insisted that every able-bodied man under the age of forty-six years in Great Britain should be called up for the army.

Additional weight has been given to these rumors by the suggestion that Prime Minister Lloyd George, when he said in a recent speech "We must live up to our contract with America," was alluding to a secret understanding of this nature between the American and British governments.

"The Ministry of Information is able to state with authority that there is no truth whatever in these reports," says Reuters, Limited. "The United States makes no claim in respect to British manpower, as has been suggested."

"When Mr. Lloyd George referred to our contract with America," he had in mind the moral obligation of Great Britain not to relax her efforts owing to the entry of the United States into the war. America declared war to defeat the menace to civilization and to the ideals which both Americans and Britons have in common. Both nations are putting out their full efforts to this end in complete cooperation, but with no interference in each other's internal arrangements."

The Casualty List

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Casualties among the American troops in the severe fighting in which they have been engaged since July 15, when the German offensive was launched and halted at the Marne, are now being reported in the daily lists from General Pershing, though no estimate of the total has yet been received.

To-day's army list contained 706 names, the largest number reported in a single day. Of the men named 459 were killed in action, 80 died of wounds and 148 were wounded, 48 seriously and 100 degree undetermined. The missing in action numbered only three. In addition to the army list the marine list to-day contained ten names—nine killed in action and one died of wounds.

18-Year-Old Youth Included Among 33 N. Y. Men Killed

Largest Casualty List Yet Received Dates Back to Early in July

Jamaica Contributes Unusual Number of Heroes Who Fell in Battle

Thirty-three men residing in New York and vicinity were reported dead yesterday in the largest list of local casualties so far received from France. The list dates back to the middle of July, and the majority of the men are believed to have fallen in the defensive fighting along the Marne before the Allied counter attack began on July 18. The 165th Regiment contributed many names to the roll.

Louis Engelke, eighteen years old, Company C, 9th Infantry, was the youngest member of his command. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Engelke, 20 Dean Street, Jamaica, received word yesterday that he was killed in action on July 18.

"Maybe I'm only a kid, but I'm doing a man's duty for the U. S. A.," he wrote in his last letter home. "Don't mind my penmanship, as the bullets are whizzing around me and the cannon are roaring with a deafening roar. I'll answer my letter soon, so that your letter may be the last thing I read in case I'm killed."

One brother of Engelke is a member of the 17th Infantry, another belongs to the 5th French Mortar Battery, Field Artillery. The boy's father was born in Germany. "I only regret that I have not more sons to put Louis's place in the fight against Prussian autocracy," he said.

Private H. J. Cokely, 18 Lester Avenue, Jamaica, whose death on July 15 was reported, was married only a couple of months ago. His wife, Mrs. Cokely, was at the time of his death with her second son, a child of five months. Findley Miller, who resided with Cokely's parents, a member of the 305th Heavy Artillery, recently died of tuberculosis. Cokely was eighteen years old when he enlisted for border service with the old 69th Regiment at the outbreak of the Mexican difficulties.

His brother, Arthur, a sergeant in the 165th, was killed in action in France in the 23rd Air Squadron. Private George Edward Kopp, 55 North Tenth Street, Flushing, killed in action July 13, has a brother in the 5th Field Artillery in France. "Don't worry," he wrote in his last letter to me," he recently wrote to his mother, Mrs. Charles F. Kopp. Young Kopp was twenty-four years old and a member of the Signal Corps.

John A. Butler, N. J., was reported killed last night. His wife, Mrs. Butler, was at the time of his death with her second son, a child of five months.
